ABOUT NANCY SCHEPER-HUGHES

Nancy Scheper-Hughes is Chancellor's Professor of Anthropology at UC Berkeley, where she directs the doctoral program in Medical Anthropology, and the co-founder and director of Organs Watch, a medical human rights project on human trafficking to supply organs for transplant patients. A new, updated edition of Death Without Weeping: The Violence of Everyday Life in Brazil is in preparation. She is the editor (with Loïc Wacquant) of Commodifying Bodies, and (with Philippe I. Bourgois) of Violence in War and Peace. Forthcoming are two ethnographies: The Ghosts of Montes de Oca: A Hidden Subtext of the Argentine Dirty War (University of North Carolina Press) and Kidney Hunter: Trafficking with the Organs Traffickers (University of California Press).

In her keynote address, Scheper-Hughes will discuss the political, economic, and moral economies that have transformed the experiences of life and death in the interior of Northeast Brazil, 20 years after the publication of Death Without Weeping: The Violence of Everyday Life in Brazil.

ABOUT IRIS MARION YOUNG

Renowned philosopher and social and political theorist Iris Marion Young was a faculty member in Pitt's Graduate School of Public and International Affairs during the 1990s. She was a vital member of the Women's Studies Program and the University community, and she was an activist for gender equity, labor rights, and other forms of social justice. As a scholar, a teacher, and a citizen, she was inspirational. The Iris Marion Young Memorial Lecture and Awards Ceremony celebrates her legacy by honoring members of the Pitt community who work to promote social justice and democracy.

For more information, e-mail Nancy Glazener at glazener@pitt.edu or visit www.wstudies.pitt.edu

The lecture and the Iris Marion Young Awards ceremony is sponsored by the Women's Studies Program, the Graduate School of Public and International Affairs, the Office of the Vice Provost and Dean of Students, the Office of the Associate Dean for Undergraduate Studies, the Center for Latin American Studies, the Department of Hispanic Languages and Literatures, and the Center for Bioethics and Health Law.
